If You Have No Canner You Can Make One!

"All authorities on home canning advise that non-acid vegetables be canned by processing (cooking in jars) in a steam pressure cooker because a pressure cooker is the only household utensil that can retain a much hotter than boiling temperature. High temperatures are desirable when canning beans, peas, corn, greens, etc., because they insure more certain destruction of bacteria and because the canning can be done more quickly. But," says Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, who heartily approves using a pressure cooker whenever possible, "the time is at hand when we must be practical. Don't worry if you can't buy a pressure cooker for surely you can find a wash boiler, lard can, baby bath tub or some deep container in which water can be boiled. Tack a few strips of wood together to make a rack or platform to hold the jars about one-half inch from the bottom of the container. Find something, even if it has to be a board, to use as a lid. Then you will have a water-bath canner for those Victory garden vegetables."

"You are afraid to eat vegetables canned that way? Nonsense! A lot of folks who say a water bath can't be used were raised on vegetables canned by that method. But let's get three things clear before we go any further: first, there have been a few instances of poisoning from eating canned vegetables; second, all such danger can be avoided by boiling the canned vegetables 15 minutes before tasting or serving—they should be re-boiled before serving if left over from one meal to the next; third, a pressure cooker is not a guarantee against spoilage. There will be spoilage if the pressure gauge registers too low or if poor judgment is used in the selection, preparation, and packing food into the jars. And do not let anybody tell you otherwise."

"Now back to the water bath. The water should be steaming but not boiling when the jars are lowered into it and deep enough to cover the tops of the jars two or more inches. No, water won't get into the jars if directions are followed. The water should be brought to boiling as quickly as possible and kept boiling steadily throughout the canning period."

"Any jar suitable for use in home canning (and only those with names lettered on them are suitable) may be used for water bath processing. Mason jars may be sealed with one piece zinc cap and rubber—if you can find the caps—with glass top seal or with two-piece vacuum seal caps. Glass top seal closures and vacuum caps seal on the top edge of the jar, therefore it is necessary to make sure the top edges of the jars are even, smooth, and perfect in every respect. The bands are screwed down tight on the vacuum seals as soon as the jars are filled to within from one to one-half inch of the top, and should not be tightened again. Zinc caps are screwed down on the rubber bands and then loosened slightly. Bands for glass top seals are screwed down and then loosened. This tightening and loosening is called 'partly sealing' and should always be done before jars are placed in a canner. Seals are completed by tightening caps or bands immediately after processing."

"Then there is the jar with a glass lid and rubber ring held in place with wires—it is ideal for canning, especially when fitted with high-tension, stretch-proof, steel wire. It is partly sealed before and completely sealed after processing."

"Those who select vegetables that are young, tender, and right out of the garden, and waste no time in washing them clean, cooking them five to ten minutes, and pouring into clean, hot jars and processing immediately, will live to laugh at those who say it can't be done. It is the Cans, not the Can'ts, who are going to win the war on both home and battle front."

University of Texas To Offer Religious Courses

Austin, Texas — University of Texas students will have the opportunity to add religious education courses to their summer program this year for the first time.

Bible and religious education courses have for many years been taught in the long session, but this is the first time they have been available in the summer.

Religious educators say they expect a much larger than usual influx of new students this summer, due to the war-accelerated training program and the University's new calendar of three 16-weeks terms, and they wish to make it possible for these students to start religious education along with their academic training.

This work, while not offered as part of the University curriculum, may be taken for credit toward University degrees. It is given under the auspices of the Association of Religious Teachers, composed of educators attached to the various churches in the University community.

Courses to be offered this summer, beginning July 5, include Life and Teachings of Jesus, Life and Letters of Paul, the Social Teachings of Jesus, and the Family as a Moral and Religious Agency in Religious Education.

No Serious Labor Shortage Jones Co.

From all reports to the County Agent's office, there is no serious labor shortage at this time in Jones County with the possible exception of trained tractor operators. Farmers, farm women and children are attempting to solve the problem by themselves by that good old policy of "neighborly help", trading labor from farm to farm and neighborhood to neighborhood, seems to be solving the cotton chopping and hoeing problem.

Lack of trained tractor operators has increased the amount of hoeing due to the inability of available operators to get to the crops in time. Some farmers report that there is plenty of labor available if they could compete with business and industrial wages.

For those farmers who are in need of farm labor, the County Agent is in position to render assistance through the New Farm Labor Program recently established by Congress.

on the government's civilian payroll during the first World War. Of course this is a bigger war, but that only furnishes an even greater reason why the government should lead in conserving manpower for our farms and factories.

The "Renegotiation" Law

A single measure, introduced in Congress last year, would require thousands of new payrollers to carry out its provisions. This was the act providing that the Army, Navy and Maritime commission should each check its war contracts so that renegotiation could be demanded in cases of excessive charges.

The purpose of this legislation—to make sure that the government was not paying too much for its materials and supplies—was not questioned. But the proposed method of rechecking all war contracts called for the hiring of such a large number of new federal employees that amendments to the bill were quickly demanded.

For the benefit, then, of farmers whose crops and livestock will suffer this year if manpower is not replenished; for the benefit of the armed services which have set their sights at possibly 10 million in uniform before 1944; for the benefit of the factories which must turn out ammunition, shoes, clothing, supplies and processed foods in ever-increasing quantities for fighters, civilians and allied nations, a careful stock-taking of manpower is required.

CRISIS IN MANPOWER

Today's problem of manpower means as much to the farmer with one hired hand, or the merchant with a single clerk, as it does to the industrialist who employs a thousand persons. It is all a matter of proportion.

The war program has reached such a stupendous size that the proper distribution of manpower assumes as much importance as the right use of steel, oil, rubber, or any other essential material or product.

It has been such a short time since there was more manpower than industry and agriculture could absorb that we may be a bit slow in waking up to the fact that today each man and woman who can be used to help in the battle of production is needed, and needed badly.

For the benefit, then, of farmers whose crops and livestock will suffer this year if manpower is not replenished; for the benefit of the armed services which have set their sights at possibly 10 million in uniform before 1944; for the benefit of the factories which must turn out ammunition, shoes, clothing, supplies and processed foods in ever-increasing quantities for fighters, civilians and allied nations, a careful stock-taking of manpower is required.

Where Manpower Is Wasted

Our new Congress must make sure that those in charge of this task, in Washington, cast about to see where able-bodied people are being needlessly employed. And in that city of Washington these authorities are now rubbing elbows with thousands of clerks, auditors, stenographers and others who could be used elsewhere without interfering with the war effort in any measure.

Recent figures showed that there were 2,606,300 persons on the civilian payroll of the federal government. This is not only a million more than were in our armed forces in foreign lands at the time the President made his address at the opening of the present Congress, but it is three times as many as were Put Victory First On The Fourth!

The Texas Safety Association made that appeal to patriotic Texans today in launching a statewide campaign against Fourth of July accidents that waste man power, material and time vital to victory.

Thirty-eight statewide organizations are joining with the Association in the greatest mass attack on holiday accidents ever made in this state.

Public officials, safety leaders and citizens throughout the state are being asked to enlist in this holiday campaign in a united effort to prevent accidents which last year took a toll of 87 lives in July alone.

Wartime travel restrictions and the fact that many of the state's war plants will be working full blast through the holiday period may reduce the normal Fourth of July traffic volume. The Association pointed out, however, that many workers will have a long week-end holiday and that traffic hazards still prevail, even on short drives.

The Association made these specific holiday safety suggestions.

1. Stay close to home. Don't drive unless you absolutely have to.

2. Don't take any trips unless you have to, even on a public conveyance. Crowds on trains and buses increase travel hazards.

"This year," said R. B. Rooper, president of the Association, "we are not only celebrating our independence, but are fighting to preserve it. Let us not jeopardize our independence by causing accidents which impede our fight to maintain it."

The prevention of accidents is more than ever the patriotic duty of every citizen, for accidents slow production of war materials. We who are still at home can at least make sure that we do nothing to make it harder for our fighting men. If accidents keep weapons and supplies from them, then accidents must stop. "Remember—accidents help the Axis. Let's avoid them and put victory first on the Fourth!"

Up Your Savings

There will be American justice for the savages of Tokio but our trial and punishment of Tojo and his criminals will cost blood, sweat, toil and tears and money. You can supply the money by upping your war bond buying through the payroll savings plan. Figure it out yourself and see where the money is coming from. How much does it cost you and your family to live each month? How much money is coming in from all members of your family? Put the extra money into war bonds, every penny of it. Let 10 per cent be only the starting point for figuring your allotment.

A $1,500,000 fund-raising campaign is now in process to build and equip the first unit of the Greater Medical Center in Dallas. Temporary buildings are being erected to house the school until such time materials can be had for the construction of the main building. The Medical Center is a $25,000,000 project and is to render service to more than 14,000,000 people in the Southwest.

Yes, indeed! I'm mighty proud to be furnishing some of the 57,360,000,000 eggs Uncle Sam's asked for in '43. It takes five or six hens to lay enough eggs for just one soldier's daily supply, and you can bet we're all laying to beat the odds.

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

FORMER HAMLIN MOTHER HAS

EIGHT SONS IN THE SERVICE

Cleburne, Texas

June 13, 1943

Mr. Bowen Pope,

Dear Sir:

When my subscription to the paper is out, renew it for me. Hamlin will always be home to me because I lived there thirty years and have so many friends there. I cannot write every one, so I take this method of thanking them for their kindness to me. I came to Cleburne to be near my children, I bought me a nice home here, and like it fairly well.

I saw in the paper where Mrs. Garrett has five sons in the service of our country. I have her beat, I have eight in service and four are overseas. All volunteered except one and he is only eighteen. I am proud of them all. All I can do is pray for them.

I really enjoy the paper. Best wishes for you and every one.

Mrs. T. M. Hill

— S & S —

A letter dated June 3, from our Paratrooper friend, Cpl. D. T. Townsend, is headed "Still Somewhere in North Africa." Donnell says "I got two Heralds today, and believe me they really help the morale of the soldier boy. There is nothing we boys look forward to more than getting mail from home. Over a dozen boys have already asked to read my papers.

It really makes us feel good to know people at home are doing such a grand job, buying bonds—that helps a great deal, but when we hear about people striking for higher wages, that doesn't sound so good. If they could see across the water, and know what we boys over here are doing, they would not strike because they are not making $200 a week." He says, "The hardest thing of all we have found to do is to learn to do without."

Announce
Approaching Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hill, of Marenci, Arizona, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Koleta Zane, to Mr. Norman C. Bonine, of Clifton, Arizona.

Mr. Bonine's home is in Clifton, Arizona, where he is employed in the Post Office.

"Renegotiation" Might Touch You

Under no other circumstances is the fine spirit of neighborly cooperation shown to better advantage in a rural community than in the case of fire or other calamity. This friendly spirit is not based upon personal interest, but upon the deep sympathy that just naturally arises in case of disaster. Of course, there is a personal interest if the fire threatens our own property, but we like to think this unity of spirit in our rural life is typical of America.

There is this same community of interest between industry, labor and agriculture, although sympathy for each other's troubles seldom comes to the surface.

Every farmer knows that his best market for the produce of his farm is our local domestic market. He depends upon this domestic market to consume over 90 per cent of what our American farms produce each year. If anything happens to his domestic market, like the depression and loss of employment in the early thirties, agriculture is at once affected. On the other hand, if anything happens to the buying power of agriculture, industry is hurt just as badly.

Right now congress is considering the renegotiation of all government contracts. The law was passed on April 28, 1942. Some people are urging that these new renegotiation bureaus should examine contracts made long before the law was passed.

Take the case of a contract made in 1940. The work has been done and paid for; taxes have been paid to the government on the profits, if any; labor has been paid and the money balance distributed either in repairs to plant or perhaps paid in dividends to stockholders.

Danger of Retroactive Measures.

Suppose that same thing happened to our local store, or even to our farmers themselves. Suppose the prices we received for our crops, or the conservation payments by the government for 1941 or 1940 were suddenly to be "renegotiated." Every farmer has either fed out or sold his crop, purchased new machinery or perhaps painted the barn, or bought a new dress for his wife. If, under retroactive law, he were suddenly put up against the threat of renegotiation, all of his credit, and perhaps even his investment would be disturbed.

No one wants unfair profits or excessive dividends out of war contracts. Investigation has shown that over 95 per cent of industry and business made no excessive profits out of the war. Certainly no farmers have received excessive prices for farm crops.

Now Is the Time for Unity

We want to get on with this war. We must have unity. Unity is based upon mutual confidence in our government and in each other. We are all looking forward to a return of peace after the war has been won. We will then want to resume our domestic markets, replace worn-out farm machinery and resume our normal trade relationships. Industry and business will need all of their American ingenuity and strength to provide jobs which, in turn, furnish our domestic market after the war.

True, renegotiation at present is applied only to industry and contracts with the government. But we all recognize the good old American principle that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

If business contracts can be renegotiated under a law passed long after the business contracts were made, how about the sanctity of our own contracts?

Just now the fire seems far from our own neighborhood, but if we look closely, our domestic markets, both now and after the war, are involved. We can well take time off to show a little neighborly spirit and help put out the fire.

The Peoples' Edict

Money to pay for the war, yes; but no money for frills in the civil operations of any of our governing bodies. That is the edict of the American people.

Mrs. Frances Scott's Family In Reunion

All of the children of Mrs. Frances Scott were together in her home for a week end visit, except one daughter, Mrs. Lois Hale, who is employed in defense work in San Antonio, and could not come.

Those present were Lieut. Bill Scott, of Camp Bowie; Mrs. Joe Oneal and children Joseph, Sharon, and Johnnie Beth of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Roy George and sons, Kenneth and Don of Jal, New Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, of Sweetwater; K. T. Scott and children of Hamlin, and Mickey, who lives with his mother. Others present were two nieces, Frances and Barbara Ann Hale, and a nephew, Jimmy Hale, all of Boerne.

CRISIS IN MANPOWER

Today's problem of manpower means as much to the farmer with one hired hand, or the merchant with a single clerk, as it does to the industrialist who employs a thousand persons. It is all a matter of proportion.

The war program has reached such a stupendous size that the proper distribution of manpower assumes as much importance as the right use of steel, oil, rubber, or any other essential material or product.

It has been such a short time since there was more manpower than industry and agriculture could absorb that we may be a bit slow in waking up to the fact that today each man and woman who can be used to help in the battle of production is needed, and needed badly.

For the benefit, then, of farmers whose crops and livestock will suffer for this year if manpower is not replenished; for the benefit of the armed services which have set their sights at possibly 10 million in uniform before 1944; for the benefit of the factories which must turn out ammunition, shoes, clothing, supplies and processed foods in ever-increasing quantities for fighters, civilians and allied nations, a careful stock-taking of manpower is required.

Where Manpower Is Wasted

Our new Congress must make sure that those in charge of this task, in Washington, cast about to see where able-bodied people are being needlessly employed. And in that city of Washington these authorities are now rubbing elbows with thousands of clerks, auditors, stenographers and others who could be used elsewhere without interfering with the war effort in any measure.

Recent figures showed that there were 2,606,300 persons on the civilian payroll of the federal government. This is not only a million more than were in our armed forces in foreign lands at the time the President made his address at the opening of the present Congress, but it is three times as many as were on the government's civilian payroll during the first World War. Of course this is a bigger war, but that only furnishes an even greater reason why the government should lead in conserving manpower for our farms and factories.

The "Renegotiation" Law

A single measure, introduced in Congress last year, would require thousands of new payrollers to carry out its provisions. This was the act providing that the Army, Navy and Maritime commission should each check its war contracts so that renegotiation could be demanded in cases of excessive charges.

The purpose of this legislation—to make sure that the government was not paying too much for its materials and supplies—was not questioned. But the proposed method of rechecking all war contracts called for the hiring of such a large number of new federal employees that amendments to the bill were quickly demanded.

Although the bill has been rewritten and amended, it still places upon the Army, Navy and Maritime commission so much of the responsibility for re-examining their contracts that thousands of new auditors and accountants would be needed. This violates the principle that united war effort calls for the placing of every available man and woman in productive work, at the same time helping to keep the taxpayers' federal load as light as possible, consistent with wartime demands.

An acceptable amendment to this law—not yet adopted—would leave it to the Department of Internal Revenue to uncover instances of excess profit. By using this established checking system, the other departments would not have to hire extra people to wade through the 95 per cent or more of war contracts which are honestly and conscientiously executed.

Here is but one example of how manpower can be conserved in these days when the efforts of all must be directed toward winning the war.

got their start. It's the American way. Do a better job—and you get better jobs to do.

It's the system of free enterprise. It's simple—but it works.

It works so well that America's big peacetime industries became great war machines overnight.

It works so well that America's electric companies, under business management, were able to supply war plants with far more electric power than any nation has ever known before in addition to normal peacetime needs.

They're doing the job without rationing—and without increased cost to you!

It works so well that we're winning the war in spite of socialistic bureaucracies. But to hasten the day of victory, the bureaucrats must concentrate on the war and desist from their plans to permanently change our system of government by which America stands to lose its freedom at home.

POT SHOTS FROM McCaulley

BY GEO. DARDEN

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Maberry last week were Mrs. Bob Lewis of Clifton, Arizona, their daughter, and Glenn Gray, a nephew who is in the Navy and stationed at San Diego.

Visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mayo are their grandsons from El Paso, Billie and Leroy Farrow.

C. E. Dick Jr. leaves June 30th for training camp in Kansas, and not July 30th as was stated in last week's Herald. (Our error).

W. E. (Bill) Maberry and grandson Jerry Mac, Mr. and Mrs. Wick Miers and sons of Lamessa, visited last week end with parents and other relatives in this community.

Besides beef and pork, about the highest things in West Texas are weeds and wages. One farmer from the Plains tells us that he is paying boys, ages ranging from twelve to fourteen, $3.00 per day for cotton chopping. Some farmers are paying four and four and one-half for cotton choppers in some areas. "Nice work if you can get it."

The largest crowd in many weeks attended the Men's class at the McCaulley Baptist church last Sunday. Ernest Webb is president of the class and he invites you to attend as often as possible.

Mrs. Randal Parker and little son Novice visited last week end in the home of parents, Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Dick.
